Using 'Though/Although'

'Though or Although' is used in a sentence to express a contrasting/opposite situation or action.

Simple steps to remember while using 'Though/Although'

➢ Though/Although is used to join two sentence as one.
➢ We should use Though/Although always in the beginning of the first sentence.
➢ Both the sentences will remain same as it is.
➢ After using 'Though/Although' in the first sentence, put a comma (,) before writing the second sentence.

Let's take an Example: -

He is very poor.
He is happy.
✓ Though he is very poor, he is happy.

Ravi is working hard.
He will not pass the entrance.
✓ Although Ravi is working hard, he will not pass the entrance.

See… It's very simple…
